A FAMILY'S WEEKEND AT THE SEASIDE

Last weekend, the whole family decided to spend a couple of days in a rented cottage on the seaside. This was near a lovely beach in Wales.

Of course, my wife Emma, me and our four children were there;

but also my wife's parents came.

We love the seaside because there're always many things to do and have fun in the open air. For example, Graham and his brother Rick spent some time surfing and swimming.

Little Tommy played with the sand and pretended he was a sailor in his little boat. Rick also tried fishing, but didn't catch any fish.

Eddy doesn't like sea water much, but he enjoyed the beautiful seascape looking through a telescope - with some help…

Emma and myself had to carry little Tommy quite often, but the grand-parents also helped with that.

The kids made some local friends, too, and they all had a great time both on and in the water.

The weather was also good all the time. So, it was a perfect weekend.
